DUNWICH BENEVOLENT ASYLUM

Register of personal details relating to females admitted, October 1859 to 28 June 1906.

BEN 2/4

In 1866 the Quarantine Station at Dunwich was converted into a hospital for elderly, destitute and in some cases, chronically inebriated men and women. The number of inmates increased from 79 at the end of 1868, to 494 in 1888, to 978 in 1911. In 1946 the Asylum at Dunwich ceased operating and the 768 inmates were transferred to the Eventide Home at Sandgate.

Although some entries record admissions pre 1866, presumably this is to another hospital as Dunwich commenced operating in 1866.

History:

Came to Queensland per ship "Rockhampton" in 1866 with my husband. After a stay of about six weeks we went to Rockhampton where my husband worked on the wharves about eight months, when we both had fever and ague. After our recovery we removed to Maryborough, and from thence to Symple. Soon after my husband attempted to murder me while on our way to a station where he had obtained a situation for himself and me. After my recovery I was sent to Brisbane, and thence, here, to await the trial of my husband.
